

THE POINT

POINT STUDENT NEWSLETTER

WHAT'S INSIDE

Point appoints new chief diversity officer

New "Unbounded" classroom experience

Fall 2020 updates

POINT ANNOUNCES NEW CHIEF DIVERSITY OFFICER

Last week Point University appointed its first ever chief diversity officer, Leonard Phillips.

In his new position, Phillips will report to the University president and lead all of Point's diversity initiatives. Phillips will utilize his church relationships to create a new initiative to promote racial unity in the various communities Point serves.

"I am humbled and grateful for this opportunity amidst the challenging times within our society, and I look forward to the various milestones and accomplishments," said Phillips.

For information about Phillips and this new position, click here.

NEW FALL 2020 "UNBOUNDED" CLASSROOM EXPERIENCE

Throughout our summer planning, the health and safety of our students has remained our utmost priority. Because of this, Point University is excited to announce our general plan to create the fullest campus experience for students this fall.

Unbounded is a flexible, highly interactive, in-person classroom experience with virtual and online options for both learning and faculty presence. This plan has three priorities.

The first priority, flexible instruction, allows students to learn wherever they are and whatever their circumstances.

All instruction will be available online but will be deepened and expanded with in-person experiences.

The second priority, radical availability, encourages meaningful faculty-student and student-student interactions in the midst of a quickly evolving situation.

The final priority is the focused personal attention on each student. Our faculty desires to aid students in deepening, applying, and integrating what they are learning online.

IN-PERSON COURSES TO END AFTER THANKSGIVING BREAK

In addition to Point's new Unbounded classroom experience, the in-person component of the fall 2020 semester will end at Thanksgiving.

Students will complete the semester online from home, and classroom experiences will shift to virtual modes. More information regarding the logistics of this change and its impacts on student-athletes is forthcoming.

For more information regarding the upcoming fall semester, click here.

CONTINUING UPDATES

While we are extremely excited to have you back on campus in the fall, things are going to look quite a bit different in order to preserve your safety.

Make sure to continue checking your email for updates regarding campus changes for the fall.

Point University